Alberta's New Government as Given Welcome by People of Edmonton City; Premier Tells Some of Cabinet's Plans

Planned to Find Intelligent Solution of Rehabilitating the South
RELIEF FOR THE WINTER
Announces That No Member of Cabinet Will Be Active in Federal Election

Close to fifteen hundred people, young and old, rich and poor, north and south, country and city, gathered at the Prince of Wales Armories Thursday night for the high reception and laid given by the city of Edmonton to the new legislature which is to meet in the office in Alberta. There is especial significance in this expression of good feeling and good wishes, since the new government has come from a farmers' organization, and on quite distinct from any conception that city dwellers have had to date of the organization of a government. The spirit was especially good, and it was most distinctly that the people of Edmonton were willing to go more than half way in meeting the needs of the province. The Premier, Mr. Brownlee, and his cabinet members were all present, and each of them had to be introduced to the city dwellers.

Government Policy
The Premier, Mr. Brownlee, led by Lieutenant-Governor Brett and Mrs. Brownlee, and the members of the cabinet were escorted to the front of the armories where they were met by a large group of city dwellers. The Premier, Mr. Brownlee, and his cabinet members were all present, and each of them had to be introduced to the city dwellers.

Building Well Filled
The floor of the great Armories was completely covered with people, and the galleries accommodated hundreds of people. The Premier, Mr. Brownlee, and his cabinet members were all present, and each of them had to be introduced to the city dwellers.

SHIPPING RATE CUT BY U.S. TO GAIN CARGOES

LONDON, Oct. 8.—The London Times learns in connection with the Egyptian cotton freight controversy that information has been received from Alexandria that the United States shipping board is prepared to meet the needs of the United Kingdom at freight rates no higher than below the British rates, and is further prepared to pay the difference between the rates of insurance charged for cargo on United States vessels and the lower rates of insurance quoted for British steamers. The board also recommends these advances with a lengthy review of the controversy, stating what it says, according to authoritative information received from the shipping commission, many years past, was the cause. The custom of cotton merchants has been to make a yearly contract with the United States shipping board for their cotton to the United Kingdom and the United States. Early last year the United States shipping board lowered its freight rates, and its representatives at Alexandria put forward the demand that the whole of the United States shipping board vessels be left at

FREE TEACHING FOR CHINESE IN EDMONTON

Presbyterians and Methodists
Combine in Opening a New Home

The missionary enterprise of the Presbyterian and Methodist churches of the city took a step forward Wednesday evening with the opening of the new home for the Chinese Christian association at 1619 19th street, where free instruction in the English language and the Christian religion will be given by volunteer teachers from the churches here and every evening of the week.

The opening and dedicatory service were conducted by Rev. Wm. Grant, with both English and Chinese singing taking part. The meeting was presided over by Rev. Wm. Grant.

Rev. Wm. Grant, who looked upon the Chinese Christian association in the city, there are now about 800 Chinese in Edmonton, more than 200 have passed through the school during the last 12 years and have gone back to China to evangelize their fellow countrymen. When the new home was opened, there were 100 Chinese in the city and of this number 100 volunteered for service.

The gathering was a most enthusiastic one and great hopes were expressed for the spread and growth of the Chinese movement among the Chinese of the city.

Miss Marion Hargrave, delighted the audience with her singing. She was accompanied at the piano by Miss Agnes Patterson.

WATERCRESS PLANT

Paris Has One Covering Forty Acres

The largest watercress plant in the world is that of England, near Paris. It covers 40 acres and consists of a series of ditches, or canals, running parallel. The ditches are about 200 feet long, 4 feet wide and 18 inches deep. They are filled with water from a river about 10 miles away.

The cultivation of the plant is interesting. The water is drawn from the river by a pump and is then distributed to the ditches. The plants are grown in the ditches and are ready to be picked in about a week.

"How's business?" asked the customer. "Very bad," replied the clerk. "But you don't mean to be worried?" "Yes, sir. I don't want the store."

What The League Is.

The Assembly of the League of Nations decided to eliminate Article X of the covenant, the one proposed by Hon. C. J. Doherty, representing Canada. This clause was the one to which the fiercest objection was taken by Republican leaders in the United States, and it was hoped that its removal might pave the way for the admission of the republic to the international pact. The article has been held to bind each nation to the maintenance of military and other support when necessary to "preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League," an interpretation which the clause certainly bears. That that was what it was intended to mean was also strongly suggested by President Wilson, who represented the article as "an absolutely compelling moral obligation." The amendment committee of the League has decided that the clause does not bind members to take part in any military enterprise on instruction from the League; and on the strength of this decision the members have repealed it. The clause stands therefore, in virtue of the interpretation that the League is giving it, as a moral obligation only, and not a binding authority over the national freedoms of the member nations. That may be all right, but the League is not to move the scruples of the U. S. It is quite as likely to arouse dissatisfaction in the future. Small members no doubt look upon the League as their protector against aggression at the hands of powerful neighbors. The clause could only be that if it could sum up the League as a body of nations which could and would prevent war. This was to be done by putting in the hands of the League such authority as would bring the whole structure of its membership against its nation threatening to start war, and the article in question is the section of the covenant by which the signatory nations have been supposed to concede this measure of international control over their conduct. The declaration that they have made no such concession is fatal to the assumption that the League is an agency to enforce peace. All the members have agreed to is that the League council may advise them that they should act in concert to make war upon a war-making nation; whether they act upon the advice or not remains with the individual nations concerned.

What the ruling would probably mean in practice may be surmised. The nations which had immediate and vital interests in the cause of the disarmed would respond to the call of the League to mobilize armies and troops to pass upon their alleged rights. The others would stay out unless and until the conflict spread and threatened to involve interests of concern to them, justifying their action by interpreting Article X as it has now been construed. Whatever happens to the League, the consequences are that the limitations of its authority should be defined now, and by itself. Better that the world should know what the League can and cannot do, than that it should continue to be regarded as some super-power which can command the fleet and armies of the contracting countries for the preservation of existing lines and international establishments. Understood to be in the last circumstance only an advisory body, it will not be relied upon if it means no more than The Canadian representative at least did the world the service of bringing out the plain fact as to what the League amounts to, and thereby dispelling the visions of unfounded hope which a war-weary world was prone to see in the covenant. But it is scarcely apparent why Article X is worth retaining if it means no more than that the League could advise its members might surely be assuming without keeping in the covenant a high-sounding clause that has no real significance.

Bolting the Missouri Idea.

Another of the stalwarts of the agrarian movement in this Province, the late Mr. J. H. H. H., has been elected to the position of tatorship of Mr. Wood, Mr. Joshua Fletcher was a leading spirit among those who in 1904 brought about the fusion of the Society of Equity with the United Farmers and thus established the organization over which Mr. Wood presides. In that and the following year he was president of the U. F. A., and ever since has been an active and prominent member of it, holding for the present year the presidency of the organization. His attitude in relation to the course of the organized farmers is not therefore open to challenge by anybody as proceeding from a lack of sympathy with the essential purposes for which the organization was formed. In a published statement Mr. Fletcher announces that he is resigning from the U. F. A. as a protest against the autocratic regime of Mr. Wood, and because he recognizes the group doctrine of the amendment committee of the League has decided that the clause does not bind members to take part in any military enterprise on instruction from the League; and on the strength of this decision the members have repealed it. The clause stands therefore, in virtue of the interpretation that the League is giving it, as a moral obligation only, and not a binding authority over the national freedoms of the member nations. That may be all right, but the League is not to move the scruples of the U. S. It is quite as likely to arouse dissatisfaction in the future. Uncommon Sense by John Blake.

Is An Effective Advertisement. In the end you will succeed or fail because of what is inside of your advertisement.

But neither the X-ray nor any other device ever invented or ever likely to be invented, will enable a prospective employer to look into your brain.

Even the questionnaires and psychological tests show but little. And many a boy who stands at the head of his class in school or college never makes good after life.

You carry something behind you which is a quality that will make you to win.

But that ability has got to be tried out. It has got to be proved. It has got to be shown to the world.

That may be done successfully some day. Just now the business world is not quite ready for you.

You must have some kind of an "X" however, to sell yourself with, and the best one available is a good reputation.

If you look prosperous, if you are well dressed and alert and cheerful, you are well advertised.

Your very own "X" is the impression you make on the minds of the people.

Make that a good one. Don't be afraid to spend money on it. All that is needed is a good one.

It is the best investment that a business man can make.

The same man at Edmonton Premier Greenfield assured an audience that so far as his Government was concerned "No encouragement would be given to any legislation that is solely for the purpose of giving a class or group any advantage over any other class or group."

That, it may be taken, intended as no more than a statement that he is not going to be allowed to run the Government of Alberta if he is not, of course, destroy or disguise the fact that the Greenfield Government is a class Government.

That is a class Government, and that way he has no intention of taking. How he will get along fighting to reduce the political class to a class Government that carried him into office remains to be seen. Scarcely he means to try to control the political class.

The one thing clear from all quarters is that classism is becoming a more and more serious menace that it is. That menace is no greater because the movement happens to be among farmers. Perhaps it is even less so than that because it would be if some other class were aspiring to the control of public affairs for farmers are not instinctively or generally radical. But that it is the fact that Mr. Greenfield wants to see clear of it. Mr. Clark has denounced it and broken with the Progressives because they are tied up to it. Mr. Fletcher has withdrawn from the U. F. A. because it is the presently dominating sentiment in the organization.

Political action on the lines of class interest is being condemned from within as well as from without, and alike because it is politically disastrous and publicly dangerous. Oakes has had its day. It is discovered in the house of its own kind. Back to party politics with the voters dividing, according to principle upon issues of public moment, is the way to safety and progress. Ultimately, why not now?

Bulletin's Mail Bag

Letters on subjects of current interest will be published in this section. If a Canadian printer to obtain a license from the government to print the world's question in any style he may see fit, and to pay the Auditor General as the government officials may determine.

A NEW HOBO MENACE. Richard Phillips, in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

There may be a new menace close beside the old one. The old one was the hobo, drifting about the country between the railroads and the West.

Trains used to travel in small groups. Now they move in bands of scores or hundreds. There have been battles between them and railroad men and police forces, with some killed and many injured.

There seems to be a new menace between the railroad people and the hobos that the hobos can ride in empty cars without interference, but they must avoid passenger trains.

The showdown of work in mining districts and lumber camps and the ending of the hobo menace is the ending of the hobo menace is the ending of the hobo menace.

Parents of cars are perhaps dissatisfied at the present time with the way in which the cars are being run. I wish to say that the organization can't be held responsible for the way in which the cars are being run.

Uncle Tom's Mail Bag

Wants Words of a dog

Dear Uncle Tom—It has been a long time since I wrote last, but I have been very busy all the time. We are not finished throwing yet, as the seeds are not ready. How is Aunt Polly? Tell her "hello" for me. I have started to school again, and I like my teacher very much. Her name is Miss MacO'Malley.

Would you please send me the "Book of the Year Old River Bridge"—Bergetta Brandis.

I was wondering if you had taken a new powder. Bergetta, you have been using for such a long time, but we are glad you have remained, and hope you are very wide awake indeed. For some time I have been thinking on that we would like you to help me. I have started to school again, and I like my teacher very much. Her name is Miss MacO'Malley.
